MISCELLANEOUS READING. ICONNUNICATED.

"THE GAP WHICH CAN NE'ER BE FILLED." "There is no flock, however watched and tended, But one dead lamb is there; There is no hearth, however well defended,

But bath one vacant chair." There's a gap in the hedge at home, Jean, A gap, which can ne'er be fill'd; And the brook has changed its tone, Jean, And the sunny slope is chill'd.

The grass has grown tall in the path, Jean, Which leads to the noisy mill; And the bright water drops like tears, Jean, Where we used our cups to fill.

And the flowers refuse to bloom, Jean, On the vine, which shades the door; And the sunlight can bring no cheer, Jean, As it steals across the floor.

For a vacant scat's at the hearth, Jean,

And when at the evening prayer, Our mother's loving eye is full, Jean, As she counts the children there. But she folds us to her sad heart, Jean,

Far more frequent than she did;

And a golden curl you would know, Jean, Is close in her bosom hid. And she's laid a gipsey bonnet, Jean, With a stringless shoe away, You would know by the shape whose foot, Jean, Wore this shoe in childhood's play.

For where the greenest mosses grow, Jean, A little grave they have made, Just beside where the lilies blow, Jean, Our little prattler 's laid.

She is not fore er lost to us, Jean, She has only gone before; We'll not weep—we'll not weep—for her, Jean. She will meet us on the shore— Of that bright, happy land, above, Jean,

When this life's short dream is o'er:

Oh! there shall be no broken band, Jean, For death comes-no more-no more Middleburg, Va., October 12, 1859. ZELMA. A JOKE FOR THE LADIES .- An editor of a paper lately informed his readers that the ladies always pull off their left stocking last. This, as may be supposed, created some stir among his fair readers, and while in positive terms they denied the statement, they insisted that he had no business to know it, him no gentleman. He proves it, however, by a short argument. "When one stocking is pulled off, there is another left on; pulling off this is taking the left stocking off last. DRUGS, CHEMICALS, &c.
